

The Three Musketeers

By ALEXANDRE DUMAS.
(Condensation by Capt. Andre Moritz.)

"A. L. D. for only one day."

Athos was the only one of the four musketeers who had been a soldier.

Only three months had Athos been in Paris, yet already he was the chosen companion of the noblest of the nobles.

Three months had Athos been in Paris, yet already he was the chosen companion of the noblest of the nobles.

As for the rest, Athos had decided that they were both too good to be lost, and they were both too good to be lost.

He saw set out to find his own way, and he saw set out to find his own way.

Beauty Chats By Edna Kent Forbes

Your Finger Nails.

Do not in your enthusiasm at being able to manicure your own nails, overlook the process. It looks almost as hard as a rocket. For too much care of the nails is apt to make them—by that I mean, of course, too much to expect. The nails can be looked after every day; they should have some daily attention besides the regular cleaning of them, but the cuticle should not be cut, nor should polishing powder or powder be used, more than necessary.

Nails need a weekly manicure, which includes filing into shape, clipping off ragged hangnails, trimming the cuticle where cutting cannot be avoided, and polishing. Some nails may need to be filed into shape often, but I think a two-minute treatment a day will suffice for most of us.

And this consists in nothing but taking an orange wood stick with a rounded end, and pushing the cuticle back from around the nail as soon as you have washed your hands. The stick will be soft then, and will push back easily, leaving a smooth edge. Perhaps a touching up with a piece of emery board will keep the ends of the nail shaped without the need of the steel file. And a stick buffing with a clean polisher will keep them glossy without the use of polishing powder.

A healthy nail is pink and smooth. Rough or broken nails need rubbing with oils and frequent rubbing to bring the blood to them.

Questions and Answers.
Doris M.—Taking nails will thin blood which is too thick, but I do not think they would help your case. I rather think you need more blood. Why not get a bottle from your doctor? Practically all fruits and vegetables such as carrots, apples, and other "greens" are in clearing the complexion. (Quinn, you know, are really very good—the odor that lingers for a day after they have been eaten, is the only thing against them.)

Don't overlook the manicure scheme.

Miss W. E.—Try mixing peroxide and ammonia, half and half, and use this to bleach the hair on the arms.
